CHAD: Rebel Takeover Looming

The forces of rebel leader Habre captured Massaguet on Saturday after a brief battle with government troops. The insurgents reportedly will enter N'Djamena this Friday. US diplomatic personnel and most other foreign nationals in the capital have withdrawn to the Cameroonian border town of Kousseri to await the outcome. The French Embassy--supported by a small contingent of French troops which has arrived from Cameroon--will remain in operation.

Comment: President Goukouni's government has virtually collapsed, and OAU officials expect him to resign. Goukouni, however, is obsessed with hatred for Habre and might resist to the end as an act of defiance.
